The Army of the Tofomac met at 8 c'clock in the ffik. General Joshna Chamberland was elected president, and the next meeting will be at Orange, N. J. The parade was then formed, and, led by General Gibson, marched through the town to the cemetery, where the exercises were held. General Robinson called the assemblage to order at 5 o'clock, and the assemblage to order at 5 o'clock, and introduced General Sickles, who said:

'This assemblage marks an epoch. You are the survivors of two great armies. You and your comrades fought here the decisive battle of a long and terrible civil war. Twenty-live years have passed and now the combatants of '63 come together again on your old field of battle to unite in pledges of love and devotion to one Constitution, one Union and one flag. "To-day there are no victors, no van-quished. As Americans we may all de-rive a common share in the glories of this battle-field, memorable for so many bril-liant feats of arms. No stain rests on the colors of any battalion, battery or troop that contended here for victory. Gallant Buford, who began the battle, and brave Fickett, who closed the struggle, fitly rep-resent the intropid hosts that for three days rivalled each other in titles to mar-tial renown. Among the hundreds of memorial structures on this field, there is not one bearing an inscription that wanneds the susceptibilities of an honor-sble and gallant foe.

"This meeting is an historical event. We dedicate here on this battlefield to-day an altar sacred to peace and tranquility and Union. We sow the seeds of friendip between communities and States and opulations once hostile and now reconted. We all share in the rich harvest aped by the whole country. North and buth, East and West, from the new merica born on this battlefield, when he Republic consecrated her constitutions to liberty and justice. It is said that is not wise to perpetuate the memories of civil war, and such was the Roman axim. But our civil war was not a mere aspiracy against a ruler; it was not a lot of a soldler to oust a rival from ower; it was not a pronunciamento, he conflict of '61-5 was a war of institutions and systems and policies." It was a revolution, ranking in imortance with the French revolution of the seventeenth. sal in its beneficent influences upon the destinies of this country, and methocable in the foot-prints it made in the path of our national progress. The memories of such a war are as indestructible as our civilization. The names of Lincoln and Lee, and Grant, and Jackson, can never be effaced from our annals. The valor and fortitude and achievements of both armies, never surpassed in any age, demand mies, never surpassed in any age, demand a record in American history, and now that time and thought, common sense and common interests have softened all the animosities of war, we may bury them forever, whilst we cheristrand perpetuate as Americans the immortal heritage of honor belonging to a Republic that became imperishable when it became free. The war of '61-5 was our heroic age. It demonstrated the vitality of Republican institutions. It illustrated the martial spirit and resources and genius of the American soldier and sailor. It was a war in which sentiments and ideas dominated interests. The lavish sacrifices of blood and treasure, the unyielding tenacity of the combatants, the constancy and firmness of the people on both sides, men and women, old and young, rich and poor, signalized the great conflict as the heroic age of the Republic. We now see that the obstinacy of the war, on both sides, compelled a settlement of all the elements of disunion between the North and the South. An armed peace might have been a mere truce, to be followed by recurring hostilities. We fought until the furnace of war melted all our discords and moulded us in one homogeneous nation.

"Let us all be devoutly thankful that God has spared us to witness and to share God has spared us to witness and to share the blessings bestowed by Providence upon our country, as the compensation for countless sacrifices made to establish on just and firm foundations a Govern-ment of the people, by the people, and for the people.

"For myself, I rejoice that I am here to-day, to meet so many comrades and so many foes, and to unite with all of you in pledges of friendship and fraternity. And now I ask you, one and all, the survivors of the blue and the gray, to affrm with one voice our unanimous resolve to maintain our Union, preserve our institu-tions and defend our flag." Governor Gordon's Address.

He was followed by Governor Gordon of Georgia, who said:

"Ma, Fresident and Fritow-Solders:

I gree you to night with far less trepulation and infinitely more pleasure than in the early days of July, 1865, when I last met you at Gettysburg. I came then, as now, to meet the solders of the Union army. It would be useless to attempt utterance to the thoughts which now thrill

The temptation is to draw the contrast between the scenes which then were witnessed and those which greet us bere to night to speak of the men with whom I then marched and of those who here hought and fell; of the contrast made by this mass of manly contlasty and good fellowship with the long times of dusty uniforms which then stood in battle array beneath bristling tayonets and special conflict.

I would speak of all these and of the motives which impelled each, of the swaying tides of the three days battle, of the final Federal victory and of its preponderating influence in turning the scales of war. The nature of the pleasing duty assigned me ferbids this. There is, however, one suggestion which dominates, my thoughts at this hour, to present which I ask brief indulgence. Of all the martial virtues the one which is perhaps more characteristic of the truly orave is the virtue of magnanimity. citizens are stimulated more or less under its patriotic influences. It is a grand and glorious day for the average boy to exhibit nis patriotism and love of his country by making as much noise as possible with drums, firecrackers, torpedoes, etc., and that is all right as far as the boy is concerned and his noisy Fourth of July proclivities.

The adults of the United States also have their own sweet way of enjoying themselves. Some stay at home with their families, but the great majority spend their Fourth from the city, and it is for the class that this article is especially written. In order to counteract the bad effects of the heat, impure water, and unwholesome food, of which we are liable to particle away from home, it is necessary that we should use a little precaution and take a preventive or cure with us. There is nothing better to have on a trip like this than a bettle of Tharp's pure old Rye Berkeley Stimulant. It will possibly increase your merriment and come in excellently well in case of cholera morbus or sunstroke.
